Acknowledgments

The contributions in this volume are the result of a major research project on the Swedish welfare state organized jointly by the Center for Business and Policy Studies (SNS) in Sweden and the National Bureau of Economic Research (NBER) in the United States.

SNS is a private, nonpartisan, nonprofit organization with the aim of promoting research on economic and social issues of importance to public decision makers and making it readily available to a broad audience. As an organization SNS does not take a stand on policy matters.

The project was initiated by SNS in 1991. SNS turned to the NBER to obtain a qualified outside perspective on the Swedish economy at a time when severe problems were building up in the Swedish economy. Although the project brought together American and Swedish economists as coauthors, the researchers were asked to maintain an American or outside perspective on the issues. The research was finalized in 1994 and presented at a public conference in Sweden in January 1995.

The research for this volume has been made possible by financial support from the following sources: the Jan Wallander and Tom Hedelius Foundation, the Swedish Council for Research in the Humanities and Social Sciences, the Axel and Margret Ax:son Johnson Foundation, the Swedish Council for Social Research, the Marianne and Marcus Wallenberg Foundation, the Marcus and Amalia Wallenberg Foundation, the Wenner-Gren Center Foundation for Scientific Research, the National Bureau of Economic Research, and the Sven and Dagmar Salén Foundation.
