Relation of the Directors to the Work and Publications of the National Bureau of Economic Research

1. The object of the NBER is to ascertain and present to the economics profession, and to the public more generally, important economic facts and their interpretation in a scientific manner without policy recommendations. The Board of Directors is charged with the responsibility of ensuring that the work of the NBER is carried on in strict conformity with this object.

2. The President shall establish an internal review process to ensure that book manuscripts proposed for publication DO NOT contain policy recommendations. This shall apply both to the proceedings of conferences and to manuscripts by a single author or by one or more co-authors but shall not apply to authors of comments at NBER conferences who are not NBER affiliates.

3. No book manuscript reporting research shall be published by the NBER until the President has sent to each member of the Board a notice that a manuscript is recommended for publication and that in the President's opinion it is suitable for publication in accordance with the above principles of the NBER. Such notification will include a table of contents and an abstract or summary of the manuscript's content, a list of contributors if applicable, and a response form for use by Directors who desire a copy of the manuscript for review. Each manuscript shall contain a summary drawing attention to the nature and treatment of the problem studied and the main conclusions reached.

4. No volume shall be published until forty-five days have elapsed from the above notification of intention to publish it. During this period a copy shall be sent to any Director requesting it, and if any Director objects to publication on the grounds that the manuscript contains policy recommendations, the objection will be presented to the author(s) or editor(s). In case of dispute, all members of the Board shall be notified, and the President shall appoint an ad hoc committee of the Board to decide the matter; thirty days additional shall be granted for this purpose.

5. The President shall present annually to the Board a report describing the internal manuscript review process, any objections made by Directors before publication or by anyone after publication, any disputes about such matters, and how they were handled.

6. Publications of the NBER issued for informational purposes concerning the work of the Bureau, or issued to inform the public of the activities at the Bureau, including but not limited to the NBER Digest and Reporter, shall be consistent with the object stated in paragraph 1. They shall contain a specific disclaimer noting that they have not passed through the review procedures required in this resolution. The Executive Committee of the Board is charged with the review of all such publications from time to time.

7. NBER working papers and manuscripts distributed on the Bureau's web site are not deemed to be publications for the purpose of this resolution, but they shall be consistent with the object stated in paragraph 1. Working papers shall contain a specific disclaimer noting that they have not passed through the review procedures required in this resolution. The NBER's web site shall contain a similar disclaimer. The President shall establish an internal review process to ensure that the working papers and the web site do not contain policy recommendations, and shall report annually to the Board on this process and any concerns raised in connection with it.

8. Unless otherwise determined by the Board or exempted by the terms of paragraphs 6 and 7, a copy of this resolution shall be printed in each NBER publication as described in paragraph 2 above.

Acknowledgments

The contributions in this volume are the result of a major research project on the economy of the United Kingdom organized jointly by the National Bureau of Economic Research (NBER) and the Centre for Economic Performance (CEP) of the London School of Economics and the Economic and Social Research Council Centre for the Microeconomic Analysis of Public Policy at the Institute for Fiscal Studies (IFS). The motivation for the project was the continuing effort of U.K. governments, from the Conservatives in the 1980s through Labour in the 1990s, to improve economic efficiency in the country by developing more market-friendly policies and economic institutions. The project benefited greatly from discussions with numerous government, union, business, and academic experts and leaders in the United Kingdom, many of whom were involved with developing and introducing these policies.

The papers were presented at a preliminary conference and a final conference at the Centre for Economic Performance, London, United Kingdom. We thank the many conference participants, particularly the discussants, for their many valuable comments. The volume would not have been possible without the valuable assistance of the staff at NBER and the CEP. We are particularly grateful to Jennifer Amadeo-Holl of the NBER.

The research for this volume was done by economists from the CEP, the IFS, and the NBER. The IFS is an independent research institute dedicated to providing rigorous analysis of economic policy and of the functioning of the U.K. economy. It disseminates that research widely through publications, the media, and regular meetings with all levels of government. The CEP is an interdisciplinary research center at the London School of Economics. In 2003 it won the Queen's Prize as the outstanding science center in the United Kingdom. The major portion of the funding for this project came from the CEP as part of its ongoing efforts to analyze the U.K. economy and assess private and public policies to improve U.K. economic performance.
