American Economic Association and National Science Foundation

Summer Economics Fellows Program
Applications due by: February 13, 2009

The American Economic Association and the National Science Foundation are once again sponsoring a fellowship program, which is designed to increase the participation and advancement of women and under-represented minorities in economics. This fellowship allows the fellow to spend a summer in residence at a sponsoring research institution such as a Federal Reserve Bank, other public agencies, or private organizations.

DESCRIPTION:

During their residency, fellows participate as members of the research community while engaged in a research project of their own choosing. Fellows will be mentored by experienced economists both on scientific issues and career issues such as negotiating publications, the job market, and advancement strategies. Fellows are typically either junior faculty or graduate students at the dissertation stage.
