

The Council of Economic Advisers is Recruiting Senior Economists

The Council of Economic Advisers (CEA) is beginning our recruiting process for Senior Economists for the 2010-2011 academic year. Senior Economists have a Ph.D. in economics and are typically on leave from positions at universities, government agencies, or research organizations. Excellent research skills and strong presentation skills are needed. Senior Economists participate actively in the policy process, represent the CEA in interagency meetings, and have primary responsibility for the economic analysis and reports prepared by the Council. This year, Senior Economists included faculty members from Berkeley, Dartmouth, Maryland, Johns Hopkins, and Yale, and economists from the Federal Reserve Board and the EPA. It has been a productive and collegial team, and it is supported by an exceptionally strong staff of on-leave PhD students and recent college graduates. The CEA needs specialists in virtually every field of economics.

Most Senior Economists work at the Council beginning in the summer and stay for a full academic year. We are also interested in hiring one or two additional Senior Economists immediately, with the option of staying for the remainder of the current academic year, the full 2010 calendar year, or longer. CEA staff members must be U.S. citizens and may not also be citizens of another country.

If you are interested in applying for these positions, please send your C.V. by email to:

Andrew Metrick, Chief Economist
President's Council of Economic Advisers
Email: ametrick@cea.eop.gov
Phone: 202 395-3310

Application Deadline: March 19, 2010

The United States Government does not discriminate in employment on the basis of race, color, religion, sex, national origin, political affiliation, sexual orientation, gender identity, marital status, disability and genetic information, age, membership in an employee organization, or other non-merit factor.