

International Growth Centre (IGC)
Trade Research Program
Spring Conference at Columbia University, March 22, 2012
CALL FOR PAPERS

The Trade Program of the International Growth Centre invites papers for presentation at the Spring Conference to be held at Columbia University (New York, NY) on March 22nd, 2012. We are looking for papers that address key issues at the intersection of trade and development and that have important policy implications.

A brief description of the agenda of the group and additional information regarding the activities of our program can be found here.

Papers addressing the key themes identified in the agenda – (i) product composition, (ii) externalities, (iii) measurement, (iv) winners and losers – are particularly encouraged, although papers on other topics in international economics relevant to policy issues in the poorest developing countries are also welcome.

Papers (abstracts are also accepted) should be emailed to the program directors, Andrés Rodríguez-Clare (andres@econ.berkeley.edu) and Eric Verhoogen (eric.verhoogen@columbia.edu). The deadline is February 13th, 2012.
