

Conference on

Immigration: Impacts, Integration and Intergenerational Issues

University College London (UCL), 29 to 31 March 2006

Scientific Committee:

Christian Dustmann
(University College London)

Thomas Lemieux
(University of British Columbia, Vancouver)

Ian Preston
(University College London)

Keynote Speakers:

Monica Boyd
(University of Toronto, Sociology)

David Card
(University of California at Berkeley, Economics)

Richard Freeman
(Harvard University, Economics)

Call for Papers

Deadline for paper submission: 15th December 2005

Decision for acceptance made by: 20th January 2006

Travel and accommodation for speakers of accepted papers or posters will be reimbursed. Submissions from graduate students are welcomed.

Contact:

Please send either paper or poster as an electronic copy to Albrecht Glitz at cream@ucl.ac.uk. More information at www.econ.ucl.ac.uk/cream/.

The conference will address all areas of migration with a particular emphasis on three issues: the impact immigration has on the host and source country economies, the assimilation and performance of immigrants in the host country labour markets, and the integration of immigrants across generations.

The conference, jointly organised by CRaM (Centre for Research and Analysis of Migration, UCL) and TARGET (Team for Advanced Research on Globalization, Education, and Technology), will be interdisciplinary, but with a strong focus on economics and quantitative sociology.

Supported by:

